A Good Catch

It's spring and cross spider Carl and house fly Bisly have decided to leave the tropics and set sail to return to a more tempered climate. But instead of bobbing across the water with a light breeze, soon a fierce storm comes up and the high waves wash all the supplies, the compass and the sea chart overboard. Is this the end?

Plagued by hunger, spider Carl has to cast his net although he is a vegetarian. But instead of fish, the two friends catch a message in a bottle: A mysterious treasure map! Of course, Carl and Bisly are in the mood for an adventure and they set out to find the treasure. On the way, they don't only meet an eccentric oyster with a split personality, but also a floating green island and an ever-angry crayfish pirate and his mosquito crew. As they finally manage to set foot on the treasure island, they see that a black-and-white dragon protects the treasure. And the pirates are after them...

Benno's Beast

Since Benno was bitten by a dog, the world around him looks different: scarier, more vicious, more dangerous. Just now, also Mr. Conrad, the neighbour, has a new dog, Freddie: It is always barking and jumping wildly up the fence. It is too much. Benno can no longer leave the house, can no longer go to school!

But then Benno finds out that Freddie was mistreated as a puppy and that it is actually afraid of people. Because of its barking, Mr. Conrad might have to bring Freddie back to the shelter. Benno understands: It's not Freddie's fault, nobody can do anything for their fear, Benno knows that very well! So he decides to help Freddie. Every day he will come a little further towards the dog in Mr. Conrad's garden, talk to it or throw it a squeaky ball to play with.

Freddie slowly gets used to Benno. And finally, the two of them are really face to face. And Benno notices that he has not only helped Freddie but that he has overcome his own fear by being patient and persistent.

A new concept
promoting reading

- for children ages 7 to 9
- the desire to look at the illustrations awakens the desire to read, and vice versa because in this book one doesn't work without the other!
- we go against the fear of reading: text double pages alternate with double-page spreads of illustrations. This helps with comprehension, provides small breaks from reading and is simply fun
- special "page-turners" ensure that the book will not be put down: small picture and text elements are carried over to the next page. You just cannot resist turning the page

The Girl With Four Names

Luna Debora Gretel Victoria! The siblings Ida and Knut can't believe it: Who has so many names? The girl with the freckles and the funny pigtails, whom they have just met at the ice cream stand, does.

But the girl does not only have four names, she also has four mothers. Each of them has given her a name and each name tells a part of her story. She has one name from her belly mother, another one from her finding mother, a third one from her foster mother, and finally, the fourth name from her heart mother.

"When she saw me for the first time, she took me into her heart on the spot. And she never let me out of there. And she gave me my fourth name because Victoria means victory. My mother always says that I have won all her love."

An Attic Story

Little Teddy has had enough of sitting neatly in a box on the attic. There is surely something waiting out there for him. So he leaves the house, the garden and the whole neighbourhood – eventually reaching the city and entering a bus to rest for a while. As the conductor approaches, little Teddy gets scared without a ticket and quickly jumps into a bag next to him. But inside the bag, another surprise awaits him: A little rabbit introduces itself. The two of them become friends and the school bag's owner, Fritzi, loves playing with them. Until Fritzi grows older, and, what a shock, carries Teddy and Rabbit onto the attic in a box.

Yet this time, little Teddy doesn't get bored. He now has a friend, and the attic can be whatever they imagine!

The Sound Of Friendship

Kalle and his mother live in a cozy house, right under the roof. Downstairs, Master Bellman has his workshop. He is an inventor and has already built many practical items. Every afternoon, Kalle and he tinker on something and build things. But Master Bellman is getting old and soon wants to close his workshop for good. But before he does, he wants to invent something that will surpass everything that he has made before: a sound machine that will play the most beautiful melodies the world has ever heard. And Kalle is supposed to help him. They set to work with great enthusiasm, until one day Master Bellman falls ill and can no longer come to the workshop.

Now it is up to Kalle. Thanks to his eagerness and persistence, he manages to secretly finish the sound machine. And by springtime, Master Bellman awaits a surprise he would never have dared to dream of!

Almost Alone Amongst Girls

Theo spends another holiday on the pony farm

- after all, he knows his way around horses and he knows his way around girls as well! His friend Paul also decided to join but feels in the wrong place at first. While Theo and the girls gallop past him freehand, he just watches. And he prefers to leave the grooming to the others. He's just not interested in horses. And certainly not in squeamish girls. They already panic when they see a bat.

But during his next riding lesson he feels some doubts. As he doesn't dare get on the horse again, he is secretly frustrated. Maybe he should try again? And maybe horsebackriding isn't all that bad – and the girls, neither?

Cheese In Outer Space

First, Josch finds an abandoned guinea pig on his way home from school and some random ticket. As if that wasn't exciting enough, a short time later a spaceship lands outside his window (the winning ticket!) and the pilot, robot girl Hatti, has a huge surprise for Josch: he has won an overnight stay at the Galaxel Oschnaboss space hotel. And the best part: Hatti can take him there right away together with the guinea pig.

What Josch sees in the space hotel takes his breath away. Aliens of all colors and shapes, dream spheres, colorful food bubbles. But the freakiest thing is that all the hotel guests are after his old stinky cheese sandwich which is still in his backpack. Patshlagier, a somber individual of the oligose species is particularly persistent. But Josch does not let go of his cheese sandwich - until Patshlagier steals the guinea pig which Josch cannot allow under any circumstances.

A thrilling pursuit through the universe begins and brings Josch even to the dark side of the moon. In the end, Josch does not only have to save his guinea pig but also robot girl Hatti whose weak batteries are dangerously low...

Greta

An enchanted house, right on a lonely lake.

Jella, an old friend of Greta's mother, has invited them to spend a few days of the summer vacation there. But Jonah, Jella's son, gives Greta the cold shoulder and disappears for hours at a time. When Greta meets him by chance with the other boys on the sports field in the village, he reacts irritably. On another day, though, Jonah defends Greta as the boys try to make fun of her. In an instant, the boys attack Jonah instead and call him a "wet blanket". Jonah is furious and accuses Greta of messing up everything.

In the meanwhile, Jamila, Jonah's little sister, tells Greta about their first years in Kenia, where their father is from. Greta realizes that the children struggle to get accepted because of their skin colour, because of being "different".

After a sheep gets caught in the fence, Greta and Jonah are right there to help. From that moment onwards, Jonah slowly opens up to her, they talk, explore the forest, and one time, their hands suddenly touch one another.

To soon, Greta will have to leave.

Before she does, she decides:

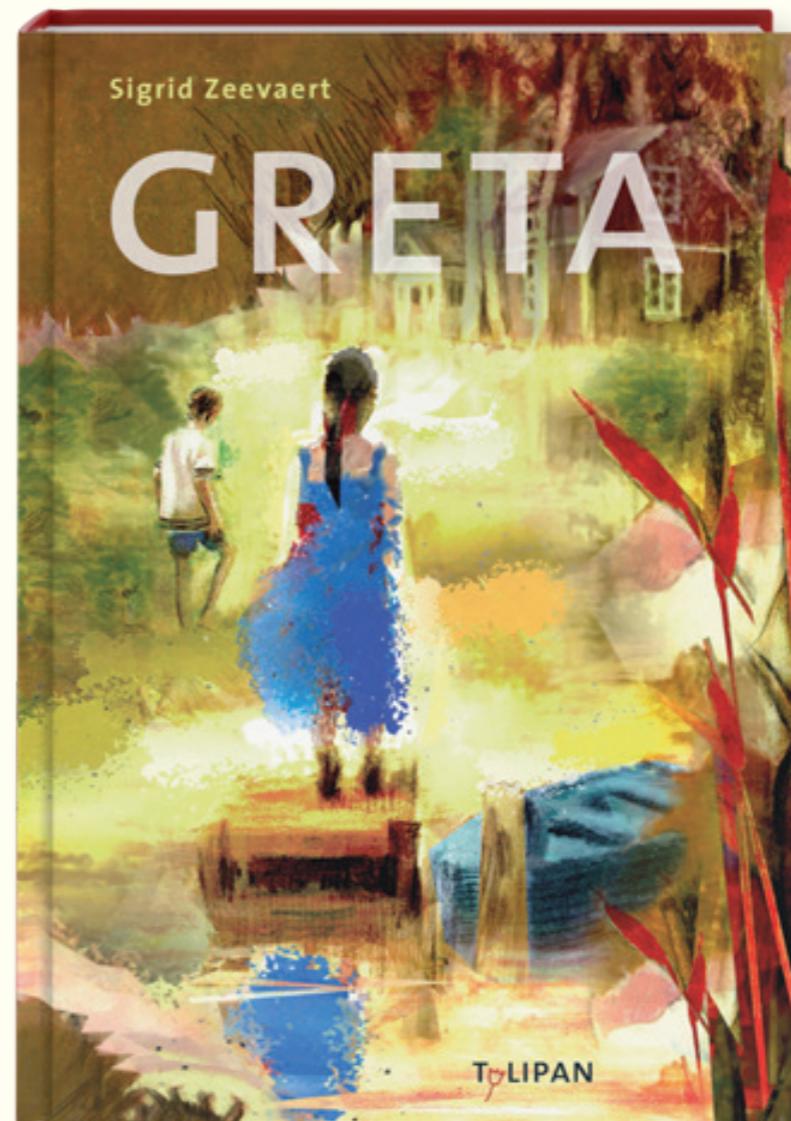

Things can't stay the way they are and she convinces Jonah to talk to the boys.

The Chaos-Queens Further Than Far Away

NOVEL/SERIES 12+

Fritzi's gets lousy grades at school and the attempt to cover it all up failed so badly that her parents are now keeping her on a very short leash. It very much looks like she has to forget about the longboard downhill competition. Nevertheless, she begins to train whenever she can sneak away.

And that's when she meets Kim, who is just as crazy about downhilling as much as she is. Why is it so hard for her to tell her boyfriend Jannik about him?

And when the news hits like a bomb that one of the chaos queens, Lou, is going to move to the other side of the world with her father, Fritzi is shocked to her core.

What will happen to her relation with Jannik and can she remain friends with Lou over a distance of thousands of kilometers?
